Honouring Our Strengths 2014
National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation (NNAPF)
Native Mental Health Association of Canada (NMHAC)
Our Mission is to engage in “a conversation about Indigenous culture in addressing substance use issue and promoting wellness.” First Nations culture must be central and foundational to addressing substance use issues and for promoting wellness for individuals, families, and communities. This belief is growing stronger across First Nations and Inuit communities, governments, service providers, policy, and research but there are many questions regarding the methods used to incorporate culture into the areas of policy, program development and delivery, evaluation, and research. Currently, there are a number of successful models of applied culture in research, policy, and program design and delivery. By coming together at events such as this one we can discuss these models and provide valuable access to a network of Indigenous knowledge and practice for those working with First Nation individuals, families, and communities.

The three keynote speakers at the conference will be Madeleine Dion Stout, Elder Jim Dumont, and Michaela Shannon. There will be a total of 24 captivating workshop sessions along with a special presentation by Nora Bressette, Ron LePage and Tina LeClair on the Buffalo Riders school based early intervention program. Following all the workshops, there will be a panel discussion on the Importance of Culture as a foundation for Wellness. In addition to offering a large variety of educational and thought provoking presentations, the conference will be an excellent opportunity to interact with delegates from across Canada.

As the Board President and Executive Director of the Nation Native Addictions Partnership Foundation, we would like take this moment to thank all the individuals who have worked on planning and organizing the conference. We would like to extend a special thank you to our partners and all of our sponsors for providing so much valuable support.

We would also like to thank all the delegates who are attending this year’s conference. Honouring Our Strengths 2014 would not be possible without the support of such a keen group of people from so many different places in Canada.

You are welcome to join us for the NNAPF Annual General Meeting on June 26th9:00 a.m. which is also taking place at the Delta Ottawa City Centre hotel.

Chief Austin Bear,
Board President
National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation

Carol Hopkins,

Keynote Speakers

Master of Ceremonies - Stan Wesley

Born and raised in Moose Factory, Ontario, a Cree community on the South coast of James Bay, Stan as a youth began what would be a life-long career of bringing laughter and meaning to audiences with the creation of “Bunnuck,” a weekly show that aired on TVO and TVNC for several seasons.

Since then, for over 20 years, Stan has engaged and entertained audiences with his unique style of fun and depth in presentations, keynotes, emcee and facilitation services. Stan speaks on a variety of issues with a focus on celebrating success and advancing good, healthy relations among Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal peoples.

Stan has worked at the local, regional, provincial and national levels. With his high energy, sincere professional approach, he is considered by many to be one of the top speakers in the country today.

Stan currently lives in Toronto with his wife, Mandy and their daughter Maya.

Madeleine Dion Stout

Madeleine Kétéskwew Dion Stout, a Cree speaker, was born and raised on the Kehewin First Nation in Alberta. After graduating from the Edmonton General Hospital as a Registered Nurse, she earned a Bachelor’s Degree in Nursing, with Distinction, from the University of Lethbridge and a Masters Degree in International Affairs from the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University. She serves on several Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal boards and committees including the Resolution Health Support Advisory Committee for Health Canada and the First Nations Health Society in B.C. and has been involved in several Canadian Institute of Health Research projects. Madeleine was President of the Aboriginal Nurses Association of Canada and member of the National Forum on Health. In August, 2007 Madeleine was appointed to the Mental Health Commission of Canada as an inaugural Vice-chair of the Board of Directors.

Madeleine was a Professor in Canadian Studies and founding Director of the Centre for Aboriginal Education, Research and Culture at Carleton University in Ottawa. Now self employed, she continues to work as a researcher, writer, and lecturer on First Nations, Inuit, and Métis health and is increasingly adopting a Cree lens in this work. She has received the Assiniwikamik Award from the Aboriginal Nurses Association of Canada; a Distinguished Alumnus Award from the University of Lethbridge; and Honorary Doctor of Laws from the University of British Columbia and the University of Ottawa. In November 2008, the Canadian Nurses Association of Canada selected Madeleine for the Centennial Award that was given to 100 outstanding Canadian nurses. In March 2010 she received the National Aboriginal Achievement Award in the health category.
Jim Dumont, Onaubinisay

Born and raised in Moose Factory, Ontario, a Cree community on the South coast of Onaubinisay (Walks Above the Ground), or Jim Dumont, is an Ojibway-Anishinabe of the Marten Clan and originally from the Shawanaga First Nation on Eastern Georgian Bay. He is the Chief of the Eastern Doorway of the Three Fires Midewiwin Lodge and, as such, is the keeper of the sacred Waterdrum and leader in the Eastern part of Anishinabe Midewiwin Territory.

Jim was professor of Native Studies at the University of Sudbury of Laurentian University for 25 years from 1975 to 2000. He is one of the founders of the university’s Native Studies Department and served for four years as its Chair from 1984 to 1988. He was also part of the founding of the contemporary movement of the Midewiwin Society. During his tenure at the University of Sudbury of Laurentian University, Jim created and taught courses in Tradition and Culture, Native Psychology, Native Way of Seeing, Native Education, and Issues of Indigenous Peoples in the International Context.

Michaella Shannon

Michaella Shannon is a member of Frog Lake First Nations in Alberta. She currently lives in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan and is hoping to move to Toronto this coming fall. She is 18 years old and has finished her 1st year at the U of S. She plans to finish her first degree in Aboriginal Jurisdiction and Criminology and then enter the field of criminal law.

Michaella’s 1st introduction to public life was at the age of 12, when she landed the part of the ‘ghost girl’ on the television series – ‘Rabbit Fall’. She co-starred with Actors like Andrea Menard, and Tinsel Cory. Since this time her acting career has included My Lupine Life, and she is currently doing a children’s television series called Space Stretch that teaches children how to do yoga. She plays the role of Sash Tanga.

Michaella was called upon to narrate the documentary film about youth building an environmentally friendly house in Cumberland House, Sk. She can be seen on the “My Wise Mentor” website as an ambassador for encouraging young females to go into male oriented fields of study. Michaella has appeared in commercials on television, billboards, newspapers and magazines for Saskatchewan Tourism, Saskatchewan Teacher’s Federation, Traxx Footwear, Idle No More, Saskatchewan Fashion Design Festival, White Dahlia clothing, and Reginal Sankey Designs.

She was involved with the Saskatchewan Ministry of Health Campaign “What Else Got Wasted” an internet, poster and television campaign to teach youth the dangers of alcohol abuse. Michaella has appeared in commercials on television, billboards, newspapers and magazines for Saskatchewan Tourism, Saskatchewan Teacher’s Federation, Traxx Footwear, Idle No More, Saskatchewan Fashion Design Festival, White Dahlia clothing, and Reginal Sankey Designs.

Michaella is one of Saskatoon’s top models and is often called upon to walk the runways for numerous fundraising events throughout the Province of Saskatchewan. She was asked to model at the Aboriginal Fashion Week Broadcasts on APTN, Vancouver Fashion Week and has appeared on the fashion segments of Global and CTV news. Michaella is a stage escort for the Indspire Awards and the Sabex Awards.

On April 28, 2014 Michaella became Miss Teen Saskatchewan – 2014 and will be going onto the Miss Teen Canada pageant in Toronto in July. She also attended the Canadian Model and Talent Convention from May 7 – 11 and came home with call backs for Paris, New York and a request for a demo tape from Atlantic records.

Michaella attends ceremony and takes part in Native Spirituality practices. She understands how ‘identity’ and ‘culture’ are important in the foundations of a persons ‘being’. She lives a healthy lifestyle and understands the importance of balancing all of life’s challenges.

She is greatly honored to be attending the ‘Honoring Our Strengths’ Conference as a youth role model who represents how much can be accomplished when you are goal oriented, focused and understand that self esteem and choosing a healthy life style is a large part of being successful.
Designing A Culturally Safe Land-Based Wellness Model,
Lessons Learned from the Cree Nation of Chisasibi, QC
June 24, 10:45am – 12pm, Room A
Larry House, Eddie Pashagumskum

In 2005 the Cree Board of Health and Social Services of James Bay began a process of integrating Cree approaches to health and wellness in northern Quebec. It has created local Mi'kmaqatissiun (Wellness) Committees in order to engage community members in the management and delivery of health and social services. The Cree Nation of Chisasibi took an active role in this process and developed an integrated model of living a good life – the Land-Based Healing Program. It reflects the Cree way of life and knowledge, as expressed by the elders involved. It acknowledges that the land and cultural traditions have healing power that can enable individuals in distress deal with pain and self-hurt. The community has recently received funding from Health Canada for the development of a Mental Wellness Team – a community-based, client-centred, multidisciplinary team of community workers that provide a variety of culturally safe mental health and addictions services.

Best practices regarding the design and implementation of the Cree Nation of Chisasibi’s integrated health model will be discussed. This includes: a background on the 6-year process for developing an effective culturally safe continuum of care, the land-based program as a culturally relevant active treatment for individuals experiencing substance use issues, workforce development of a multidisciplinary team of community workers, and reflections on challenges and opportunities in terms of governance and coordination of wellness activities in Chisasibi.

Holistic Wellness – In Community Prevention/Treatment and Aftercare and Youth Peer Education:
3 Eagle Wellness
June 24, 10:45am – 12pm, Room B

Marilyn Willier, Family Violence Prevention at 3 Eagle Wellness Society

The Holistic Wellness Program is a 16 week manualized program (including 2 weeks of job placement) encompassing life skills lessons and treatment approaches designed to promote positive growth and change in the areas of self, family, community, employment, and leisure. The program aims to help individuals develop an effective use of problem solving behaviours in the management of personal affairs and to give them the confidence to express themselves. The lessons build upon effective behavior already possessed by the participants and identify/unearth their strengths. Skill building will facilitate healing for individuals struggling with challenges related to parenting, family violence, addictions, trauma and abuse, unemployment, and skill development while practicing methods of effective communication, coping, relationship building, and emotional modulation.

Expecting Respect is a peer education program that is offered to First Nations Youth ages 12 – 18 years of age. The program’s purpose is to equip youth with the skills and the factual information necessary to make healthy decisions and build respectful relationships. The program is based on the principle that peer education is an effective method to deliver messages that encourage healthy decision making for youth. The Annual Gathering offers workshops to participants based on the current issues youth face: Alcohol, Drugs and Gambling, Healthy Dating Relationships, Sexual Health, Sexual Harassment, Bullying/Gang Violence, Elders Teachings, etc. The program empowers participants to be part of the solution in making healthier individuals, families and communities. First Nations Members from across Alberta are trained in specific areas, which then facilitate at the youth gathering. The facilitators then return home to engage local youth and mentor them into a facilitative role. Youth with the support of their mentor are then requested to engage their schools, youth councils or youth at large to offer the workshops.

The Spirit Lives: Sharing Cultural Experiences in Mental Health and Addictions,
Neqotkuk Health Centre and Wolastoqiyik Healing Lodge
June 24, 10:45am – 12pm, Room C
Laurie Nicholas, Community Health Coordinator at Mawiw Council of First Nations and Co-founder of the Aboriginal Nutrition Network within Dietitians of Canada
Roxanne Grace Sappier, Director of Neqotkuk Health Services and Executive Director of Tobique First Nation Health Services

Presenters will share cultural experience in terms of knowledge and resources that will benefit participants with their healing journeys, Addiction programs, and Mental Health initiatives. Traditional teachings from a variety of sources including the Wabanaki culture, Traditional Elders Wisdom, Medicine Wheel teachings, and the Seven Sacred Teachings can help with individual healing journeys and in the delivery of community health programs and initiatives.

Many First Nations people are faced with various challenges on a day to day basis. Presenters will discuss personal and work experiences of cultural teachings that can benefit self-care and community wellness. A Medicine Wheel Circle of Life tool sheet that can facilitate individual healing journeys will be discussed. Presenters will assist participants in building cultural competency through conversation about their work experience with how culture is interwoven into community health planning, Addiction programs, and Mental Wellness initiatives. Community resources developed by the Neqotkuk Health Centre will be illustrated.

PhotoVoice: Promoting Recovery in a Mental Health and Addictions Setting,
North Bay Regional HC
June 24, 10:45am – 12pm, Room E
Tamara Dube-Clarke, Patient and Family Partnered Care Coordinator at the North Bay Regional Health Centre

Lauree Linklater-Pizzale, Psychiatric Rehabilitation and Recovery Program Manager at the North Bay Regional Health Centre

PhotoVoice offers a unique and creative way for participants to communicate a message to the community and stakeholders by promoting discussion about a social issue; it is an avenue to creating positive social change. PhotoVoice builds skills within disadvantaged and marginalized populations using innovative participatory photography and digital storytelling methods so that they have the opportunity to represent themselves, create tools for advocacy and communication to achieve positive social change, and reduce stigma.

Photography is a highly flexible tool that crosses cultural and linguistic barriers and can be adapted to all abilities. Its power lies in its dual role as an art form and a means to record facts. It provides an accessible way to define realities, communicate perspectives, and raise awareness of important social and global issues. Its low cost and ease of dissemination encourages sharing and increases the potential to generate dialogue and discussion.

This workshop aims to provide education about the benefits of PhotoVoice in mental health and addictions settings, means to a better understanding of those with lived experience and perspectives of loved ones and/or caregivers, and a tool to combat stigma associated with mental health and addictions. Participants will be provided with tools to start PhotoVoice projects in their own communities – to identify community needs, promote awareness, and encourage stigma reduction.

The North Bay Regional Health Centre embraces the recovery philosophy in each service that they provide. The recovery philosophy has ten fundamental principles: hope, self-direction, empowerment, respect, holism, peer support, person centred, non-linear, responsibility, and strength based.

Anishinaabe Mekina Mino-Ayawin,
West Region Treaty 2 and 4 Health Services
June 24, 10:45am – 12pm, Room B
Lauree Linklater-Pizzale, Psychiatric Rehabilitation and Recovery Program Manager at the North Bay Regional Health Centre

Renita Houle, Mental Wellness Advisor at WRTHS

Located in Dauphin, Manitoba, West Region Treaty 2 & 4 Health Services (WRTHS) administers Anishinaabe Mekina Mino-Ayawin (AMMA) or “Road To Good Health”, a national Mental Wellness Team (MWT) Pilot Project funded by Health Canada since 2009. AMMA’s goals are to address gaps in mental health services for First Nation communities, to provide individuals and families with access to community based core wellness services, and to provide care givers with training and support to offer services at the community level. Cultural safety is a primary factor of program delivery, with cultural practices encouraged and promoted.

This workshop outlines the progress of AMMA, from the creation of community mental wellness teams in the seven WRTHS First Nation communities to the formation of a multidisciplinary Tribal Team of mental health professionals and paraprofessionals who provide support to the community teams. The presentation also describes the development of successful partnerships with external organizations including a strong relationship with the regional health authority that services First Nation community members, addressing substance abuse and mental health challenges. As part of its commitment to wellness, WRTHS provides crisis response to the communities and is currently developing a Crisis Service. Procedures Manual for use by front-line workers. The cultural component includes participation by a Spiritual Advisor who is available to facilitate traditional teachings and practices.

The high visibility of this project will enable assist awareness locally and regionally.

Culturally-Based Horizontal Curriculum,

Leading Thunderbird Lodge
June 24, 1:45am – 3pm, Room B

Kelly Pasloski, Leading Thunderbird Lodge

Leading Thunderbird Lodge offers a 12 week residential treatment program for First Nation and Inuit male youth challenged with alcohol, drug and/or solvent misuse. The program is grounded in First Nations culture and focuses on three streams of targeted educational concepts: academic; addiction/mental health and culture. The school is registered with the Saskatchewan Department of Education and offers academic credits transferable to other provinces and territories.

Given the variance in age, grade and literacy levels of the youth, the teachers were challenged to develop a curriculum that would address individual learning styles and needs. Supported by the University of Regina’s Faculty of Education, a ‘Culturally Based Horizontal Curriculum’ was developed and implemented. The curriculum is a project based model that spans the length of the program and incorporates individual learning through group activities.

Credits for a variety of subject areas (English Language Arts, Mathematics, Science, Cultural Humanities, Aboriginal Language and Art) can be earned through a project. The making of a hand drum is an example. Initially, the students are exposed to cultural and ceremonial protocols. The hides are traditionally gathered and tanned with the construction of a personal hand drum. Youth take their hand drums to our Sweat Lodge for blessing and are utilized during the ceremony. Educational concepts such as circumference, diameter, and radius are taught during this process.

The outcome: youth are impressed to have earned academic credits throughout a hands-on process and an interest in pursuing their education is nourished.

Grandmothers Mentoring Young Girls,

Neegahnee Wahbun Gi Gay Win Indigenous and Centre for Addictions and Mental Health
June 24, 1:45am – 3pm, Room C

Isabelle Meawasige, Entrepreneur, Cultural Consultant, and Teacher

Caroline Recollet, Aboriginal Initiatives Lead at the Centre for Addictions and Mental

The goal of this presentation is to share Indigenous knowledge and cultural practice on a project by the Grandmothers that will mentor and empower young Aboriginal girls who have addictions, substance use, and mental health issues through the use of ancient Indigenous tools and practices for health and wellbeing. The traditional cultural experience will comprise of four 4-day retreats with 15 young girls between the ages of 17 to 30, from May to September.

The land-based experience will share Indigenous knowledge and wise healing practices that include song, dance, drumming, Sacred Fire, women healing ceremonies and teachings on the Land (medicines, animals, ceremonies, Mother Earth, and Grandmother Moon teachings). The ceremonies will be specific to young women’s teachings, rites of passage, sacredness of women, traditional roles and responsibilities, and child rearing practices and responsibilities. The retreat is designed to empower; build self-esteem and confidence; relieve stress from trauma, addictions, abuse, violence and intergenerational impacts; and help heal past wounds. It will teach young girls ancient traditional roles on being a young woman (sacredness of woman), importance of Moon Lodge retreats, traditional medicines teachings, connections to the feminine, Mother earth, Water, Grandmother Moon, and the Natural World. The Grandmothers will share their knowledge, experiences, and stories derived from over 56 Grandmother’s Gatherings (4-day retreats) held over a three year period using. They will also share how they employ Indigenous knowledge and methodologies to develop evaluation and performance measurements.
The Helping Horse, Leading Thunderbird Lodge
June 24, 1:45am – 3pm, Room 1
Angelo Wasteste, Cultural Coordinator at the Leading Thunderbird Lodge
Ernest Sauve, Executive Director of the White Buffalo Youth Inhalant Treatment
Ioni Longclaws

The White Buffalo Youth Inhalant Treatment Center in partnership with Cartier Farms Equine Assisted Learning and Research principles from the University of Saskatchewan and University Of Calgary have conducted a research project titled The Helping Horse. The study was intended to determine "How Equine Assisted Learning Contributed to the Wellbeing of First Nations Youth in Treatment for Volatile Substance Misuse?"

The Helping Horse research project has recently been completed with successful evidence acquired that supports the use of animal therapy as a best practice in provision of youth treatment services. This workshop will disseminate the research findings.

Culturally-Based Residential Treatment Program, Leading Thunderbird Lodge
June 24, 1:45am – 3pm, Room E
Angelo Wasteste, Cultural Coordinator at the Leading Thunderbird Lodge

Leading Thunderbird Lodge is a residential treatment center for First Nations and Inuit male youth between 12 – 17 years of age. The program assists individuals experiencing addiction and substance abuse issues during a 12 week intake. The clinical, cultural and education program provide youth within treatment the ability to reconnect with the First Nations Traditional Medicine Wheel. All aspects of the treatment program are the stabilizing element within the wHolistic Model, being the mental, social, physical and spiritual. Strong traditional cultural teachings, First Nations Language Instruction, land based cultural programs, and classroom instruction are vital aspects of the program. Two successful programs have been introduced. Firstly, a partnership with the RCMP Academy Depot ‘F-Division’ in Regina. The program is entitled SOS, ‘Seeing Oneself’ and incorporates topics such as managing sensation seeking, negative thinking, and anxiety sensitivity. Secondly, the ‘Buffalo Riders’ program consisting of culturally specific activities and games to help youth in resiliency, drug awareness, and social skills. Continual program monitoring addresses the individual requirements of the youth. The advantage of the program is the ability to blend traditional cultural teachings with current therapeutic techniques, exposing the importance of the Traditional Medicine Wheel to their personal life experiences and wellness.

Cultural Competency, Evaluation and Performance Measurement, and Policy Development, Tuesday, June 24, 2014, 3:15pm – 4:30pm

First Do No Harm Strategy, Canadian Centre on Substance Abuse
June 24, 3:15am – 4:30pm, Room A
Carol Hopkins, Executive Director of the National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation
Paula Robson

The harm associated with prescription drugs such as opioids, sedative-hypnotics, and stimulants is a leading public health and safety issue in Canada. In response, CCSA and our partners released the First Do No Harm: Responding to Canada’s Prescription Drug Crisis (the Strategy) in March of 2013. This comprehensive, pan-Canadian strategy is a 10-year plan with 58 recommendations covering prevention, education, treatment, monitoring and surveillance, enforcement, legislation and regulation, evaluation and performance measurement, as well as research. This plan resulted from comprehensive consultations involving over 30 partners representing the healthcare community, governments, First Nations, the pharmaceutical industry, law enforcement, and people with lived experience and their families. Multi-sectoral implementation teams are actively implementing strategy recommendations and recruiting additional partners with a vested interest in this important issue. This interactive session aims to create a forum for dialogue on culturally-relevant, culturally-competent, and culturally-safe initiatives in First Nations communities that aim to reduce the harms associated with these prescription drugs and align with the First Do No Harm Strategy. A brief presentation on the Strategy recommendations will be followed by discussion about relevant initiatives underway in First Nations communities, opportunities for sharing lessons learned with others, priorities moving forward, and plans for action in the near future.

Calgary have conducted a research project titled The Helping Horse. The study was intended to determine "How Equine Assisted Learning Contributed to the Wellbeing of First Nations Youth in Treatment for Volatile Substance Misuse?"

The program assists individuals experiencing addiction and substance abuse issues during a 12 week intake. Treatment Centre Culture as Intervention Research Project
June 24, 3:15pm – 4:30pm, Room [C]
Barb Fornssler, PhD, Research Manager for the Honouring Our Strengths: Indigenous Culture as Intervention in Addictions Treatment project
Laura Hall, Researcher for the Honouring Our Strengths: Indigenous Culture as Intervention in Addictions Treatment

Drug addiction among Indigenous peoples is a serious health concern in Canada. Indigenous knowledge shares that traditional culture is vital for client healing. However, there is a serious absence of empirical documentation regarding the impact of traditional cultural practices on client wellness. This project is the first of its kind in Canada and is suitably timed with renewal processes underway in Canada’s First Nations addictions treatment system. A key recommendation of the renewal has been the establishment of a culturally competent evidence base to document the nature and demonstrate the effectiveness of engaging cultural interventions within treatment programs. The aim of this community-based research team’s work is to evaluate the effectiveness of First Nations culture as a health intervention in alcohol and drug treatment. They gathered understanding of how Indigenous traditional culture is understood and practiced at a sample of 12 First Nations residential treatment programs by undertaking a three day environmental scan at each centre that was led by Elder Jim Dumont. They prioritized Indigenous knowledge in the data analysis and, in doing so, have applied three approaches to analyzing the information collected. This involved:

1) Treatment Centre environmental scan participants (staff, clients, and community members)

2) Indigenous knowledge keepers (Elders and other traditional knowledge keepers)

3) Western-trained research team members.

From this work, a valid instrument to measure the impact of cultural interventions on client wellness is being developed and tested. This work has resulted in the development of a wellness framework addressing physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual wellbeing and the identification of 22 cultural interventions that are common to treatment centres across the country and that work to facilitate wellness in all four of the framework areas. The framework companion definitions of culture and wellness will also be shared to complete these findings.

These results are verified among the varied team members, participating treatment centres, and their communities at large. Colleen and Carol look forward to sharing this information with you through innovative knowledge translation products.

An Overview of the Addictions Management Information System,
ECenter Research
June 24, 3:15pm – 4:30pm, Room [D]
Dr. Steve Weatherbee, President and CEO of eCenter Research Inc.

The Addictions Management Information System (AMIS) is a web based database designed to replace the Substance Abuse Information System (SAIS) at no cost to treatment centres. It was developed by Health Canada in partnership with the AMIS Working Group which is comprised of Treatment Centre Directors, First Nations Community Representatives, and representatives from partner organizations (such as the National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation (NNAPF) and the Youth Solvent Addictions Committee (YSAC)).

AMIS has been designed using feedback on how existing systems (like SAIS) could better meet our collective needs. The use of AMIS will improve work efficiency and help track important trends and statistics while also contributing to accurate information about local, regional, and national trends. It is structured in a way that will allow evolution of the database in order to meet ongoing needs as they surface over time.
Changing Perspective,
Centre for Addictions and Mental Health
June 24, 3:15pm – 4:30pm, Room B

Alison Benedict, Provincial Aboriginal Training Coordinator in Aboriginal Engagement and Outreach with the Provincial Systems Support Program at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH)

John Dixon, Interim Director of Mental Health and Addictions at the Centre for Addictions and Mental Health (CAMH)

For many years, the mental health and addiction fields were not only separate but were formulated from a disease or illness perspective. All aspects of practice reflected these perspectives and worldview. People received a diagnosis and treatment based on their disease. Trauma; the social determinants of health; and individual, family, and community strengths were not focused upon which provided an incomplete picture.

The Province of Ontario developed a mental health and addictions strategy called Open Minds, Healthy Minds in 2011. As a part of this initiative, the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH) was contracted to plan and coordinate 18 Service Collaboratives across the province in order to address gaps in mental health and addiction services. This opportunity focused on taking existing services and changing the way things were always done in order to improve access and coordination. One of the priority groups identified in this initiative was Aboriginal peoples.

In their commitment to work with Aboriginal peoples, CAMH funded the Aboriginal Community Engagement program. Engagement from an Indigenous perspective has four key components: respect, reciprocity, receptivity, and renewal. As a result of engagement with Aboriginal communities, people, and organizations several initiatives have come out of this process that responded to the needs and gaps identified. This includes: the need for culturally specific strengths based assessment tools, prevention and education in the area of opioid use/misuse, the development of assessment tools from a First Nations perspective, and workforce development.

First Nations Culture-Centred Transformation in Addictions Treatment,
Dilico Anishinabek Family Care
June 25, 10:30pm – 12pm, Room A

Cheryl Bagnall, Addiction Services Manager

Tina Bobinski, Counselling and Clinical Services Manager

First Nations culture-centred modernization was necessary to improve services and outcomes for individuals accessing the Dilico Anishinabek Family Care Adult Residential Addictions Treatment Program. Providing culturally and contextually appropriate addictions treatment services to First Nations required our program to integrate cultural values into a clinical setting. Cultural philosophy, understanding client and community needs, and adjusting treatment policy and programming were the elements that required modification during our modernization phase.

This presentation will review our achievements and challenges as we navigated through the modernization process. We will discuss our learning about where evidence-based treatments share commonalities with our cultural values, the enhancements required to address the unique community needs of prescription drug use and Concurrent Disorders, and an overview of our outcomes measures.

Exploring How First Nations Traditional Use of Tobacco Can Be Utilized As a Strategy In Prevention and Intervention for Tobacco Misuse Amongst First Nations Youth
Sheila Cote-Meek, Sonia Isaac-Mann, Nicole Eshkakogan, Peter Selby, Eileen Smith, Tina Martin, Edie Karacsonyi, and Tyler White
June 25, 10:30pm – 12pm, Room C
Eileen Eshkakogan-Smith, Community Research Partner at Sagamok Anishnawbek First Nation
Sonia Isaac-Mann, Associate Director of Health within Safe, Secure, and Sustainable Communities at the Assembly of First Nations

This community research partnership explored how traditional knowledge of tobacco could be used in prevention and intervention of tobacco misuse amongst First Nations youth. This workshop reviews findings of the Indigenous led five year project that involved 4 First Nations communities from across Canada.

The research methods used a decolonizing and OCAP™ compliant approach whereby 4 participating First Nations communities were involved in all aspects of the research process including development of research tools, data collection, data analysis, report writing, and community feedback sessions. Each community team included a Research team lead (usually the Health Director in the community), a Community Based Research Assistant, an Elder, and a Youth representative. The community-based teams were supported by a Research Project Coordinator and researchers from the larger team.

The sample size is 559 Youth, aged 12-24. Preliminary results indicate that just under half of the Youth self-reported that they are current smokers. As well, 89% of Youth surveyed found that it would be fairly easy to obtain cigarettes, which speaks to a need to better understand access to nontraditional tobacco from First Nations’ perspectives. Preliminary findings reinforce the importance of understanding tobacco as a sacred medicine in addressing disproportionate rates of smoking among First Nations Youth.

The findings also speak to the active part that Indigenous youth play in their own wellness, seeking cessation strategies where and when needed.

Empowering Community Narratives,
Chippewas of the Thames First Nation
June 25, 10:30pm – 12pm, Room D

Eva Jewell, Community Development Coordinator for Chippewas of the Thames First Nation
Betsylee Kechego, Counsellor for Chippewas of the Thames First Nation

There has been a shift in consciousness of community leadership in COTTFN: to truly create the outcomes of wellness and prosperity, a viable and realistic alternative must be constructed by the people—not prescribed nor implemented by external sources.

The narrative in COTTFN has shifted from crisis management to the return of sustainable Anishinaabe aadziwin as a result of Community Development and planning. Anishinaabe aadziwin is a concept of projecting original knowledge, ways of working, and worldview into the arenas of self, family, community, and Nation well-being. It is essentially a foundation of strength for our community and part of the broader decolonization/ Nation-based rights movement of wellness through re-indigenization. Community Development begins with empowering the narrative of the people. This process is one that is based in community participatory/inclusive research and requires a highly interactive method of engaging community. Over the past three years, our community has developed a Comprehensive Community Plan (CCP) by gathering the people’s narrative to form the Chippewas of the Thames Community Story. Together, these documents have been recognized by leadership and administration through Band Council Resolution as informing the “progressive direction toward self-determined quality of life”.

What we have experienced in COTTFN from the process is that Anishinaabe aadziwin as a contextualized and relational being is a source of strength in the transformation from trauma to flourishing function. Our presentation will discuss the CCP process in the COTTFN context and its theory, practice, and contributions to community health.

Strengthening Capacity:

A Discussion on Wage Parity for Counsellors Addressing Substance Use Issues among First Nations in Canada,

June 25, 10:30pm – 12pm, Room E

Special Presentation - June 25, 1pm – 1:45pm

Buffalo Riders:

School Based Early Intervention

June 25, 1pm – 1:45pm, Ballroom BC

Nora Bressette, Curriculum Coordinator at the National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation

Tina Leclair, Executive Director of Addictions Policy and Support Branch, Manitoba Health, and Seniors Government of Manitoba

Ron LePage, School Counsellor at Mikisew Middle School

The NNAPF Buffalo Riders program offers training for NNAPF workers, school counsellors, and those who work with youth to implement an early intervention program for youth that meets all provincial education standards for the grade 7 and 8 health curriculum. It is designed to enhance and strengthen community-based capacity to provide at-risk youth with early and brief interventions and support services to help reduce harmful substance-using behaviour. The 5 day training includes the latest research and culturally specific teachings about youth resiliency, risk and protective factors, and developmental assets-factors which research has identified as critical for young people’s successful growth and development. Components of the Buffalo Riders program are also designed as a brief intervention resource. Buffalo Riders training is a valuable resource for NNAPF workers, health staff, social services staff, child and youth workers, school resource/support staff and faculty, and health and social portfolio counsellors. NNAPF is currently offering national Buffalo Riders training sessions in London, Ontario.
Leading Change – Promoting Leadership in Facilitating Change,
Six Seconds Emotional Intelligence Network
June 25, 1:45pm – 3pm, Room A

Alex Russell, Program Manager at the Six Seconds Emotional Intelligence Network

Carol Hopkins, Executive Director, National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation

Implementing the Honouring Our Strengths Renewal Framework at a systems level within regions and in First Nations communities and organizations has been underway since 2011. Managing this change can be challenging but with the right tools it is possible. This change management model focuses on understanding that systems, organizations, and communities are collections of people with a range of emotions and it’s connecting to that emotional drive that motivates people to move forward. Systems, organizations, and communities change when people change and people change through emotion. Participants will be introduced to a model for managing change and practice its application. Participants are also invited to offer their stories on how they have used the Honouring Our Strengths Renewal Framework or Culture to promote change. We are also interested in audio and video recording of your change stories.

Strengthening Self to Help Others,
Centre for Addictions and Mental Health
June 25, 1:45pm – 3pm, Room B

Corinne Fox, HBA, MSW, Provincial Aboriginal Training Consultant for the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH) in the Thunder Bay office

According to a Canadian Mental Health Report on Rural and Northern Community Issues in Mental Health (2009), workforce recruitment and retention is one of the greatest challenges facing rural and northern communities. High levels of stressful work dealing with trauma, community violence and death combined with high workloads can create staff turnover rates exceeding 50%.

Stress impacts the mind, body, spirit and intellectual aspects of a person. Learning to understand how each area is impacted; how to identify and mitigate triggers; and develop different approaches to deal with stress is one way to address stress on an individual level. In order to address stress among mental health and addiction workers, it is critical for organizations to commit to alleviating the effects of stress.

Reflective supervision, organizational policies and employee self-care strategies can be utilized to strengthen individuals and organizations against the cumulative effects of stress.

Strengthening the Workforce with Elders in the Delivery Culture Based Services,
Tsow-Tun Le Lum
June 25, 1:45pm – 3pm, Room C

Yvonne Rigsby Jones, Executive Director of the Tsow-Tun Le Lum Society

Nola Jeffrey, Program Director of the Tsow-Tun Le Lum Society

Tsow-Tun Le Lum means "helping house." We provide programs that address the issues of addictions and substance abuse, and that support the survivors of trauma and residential schools. Our mission is to strengthen the ability of First Nations people to live healthy, happy lives and to have pride in their Native identity.

This workshop shows how Tsow Tun Le Lum structures the Elders Program and manages cultural differences. It also describes the Elders/Healers selection and screening process, the protocols in place for their interaction with the rest of your program, their scope of work, compensation, and how they work together. Tsow Tun Le Lum uses a unique structure and is a valuable resource for those delivering culture based services.
Engaging the 7th Fire: Youth in the Healing of Their Peers,
Three Fires Midewiwin Lodge
June 25, 1:45pm – 3pm, Room D

Professor Nicholas Deleary, 4th degree Midewiwin teacher, Lodge Pipe Chief, and Lodge Chief

This lecture presentation is based upon thought and reflection from my experience as a community volunteer of Nimke Nupigiwangan Youth Healing Treatment Centre since its inception. With the founding of the first Board of Directors, “our/my” Pipe and Ceremonial Artefacts have been consistently employed as an integral component of Wholistic treatment of Indigenous Youth. We have witnessed three distinct generations of community volunteers who actively engage and participate in mutual healing ceremonies with the Nimke youth. The re-activation, learning, and healing through ceremony has been mutually beneficial for both the Nimke youth and the larger Indigenous community. Many of the current community volunteers are youth and others who would not necessarily make a presentation in this forum; my intention is to encapsulate some of their words and thoughts into a seven layer model of wholistic ceremonial therapy.

Cultural Competency in Trauma Informed Care,
Tsow-Tun Le Lum
June 25, 1:45pm – 3pm, Room E

Dr. Brenda M Restoule, Chair of the Native Mental Health Association of Canada

William J. Mussell, former President and Co-Chair of the Native Mental Health Association of Canada

This workshop will explore how trauma is manifested in Indigenous peoples and communities including how it is demonstrated in everyday behaviors and experiences.

We will then discuss the importance of understanding the history of Indigenous people and how trauma has significantly impacted families and communities. We will also take the time to examine how trauma affects us on a physical, emotional, mental and spiritual level to understand why it is necessary to address trauma using cultural and holistic models of care. We will argue that trauma informed care, a mainstream therapy model, must be transformed to include cultural competency in order to best address Indigenous based trauma.

The Importance of Culture as Foundation to Community Health and Wellness,
June 25, 3:15pm – 4pm, Ballroom BC

Carol Hopkins, Executive Director of the National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation

Jennifer Robinson, Senior Policy Analyst at the Assembly of First Nations

Dr. Brenda M Restoule, Chair of the Native Mental Health Association of Canada

Keith Conn, Regional Executive, Ontario Region, FNIHB

In the development of the First Nations Mental Wellness Continuum (FNMWC) framework, First Nations people across Canada identified the need to have a comprehensive framework that utilized First Nations culture as the foundation to promote health and wellness while addressing substance use and mental health challenges. This panel of presenters have played key roles in facilitating the development of the FNMWC framework and in open dialogue will respond to questions frequently asked about the role of culture in community health and wellness such as the role of language, how to apply culture at a systems level and in policy, what does this look like on the ground in community, and the balance between culture and “evidence”. The panel will also take questions from the audience.

Regional Chief Stan Beardy was born and raised on a trap line at Bearskin Lake First Nation. He attended high school and college in Thunder Bay where he also worked as a welder-fitter for several years. In order to return to a traditional lifestyle of living off the land, Beardy moved to Muskrae Dam First Nation where he was elected and served as Chief for 10 years.

Regional Chief Beardy has held a variety of leadership positions with several organizations including Sioux Lookout Chief’s Committee on Health, Northern Nishnawbe Education Council, National Aboriginal Economic Development Board, and the Northern Ontario Native Tourism Association. In his role as Grand Chief of Nishnawbe Askii Nation which he served for 12 unprecedented consecutive years, he represented 49 First Nation communities in Ontario in the territories of James Bay Treaty 9 and the Ontario portion of Treaty 5.

Throughout his time in office, Grand Chief Beardy has worked toward the implementation of traditional governance based on beneficial Treaty relationships with the governments of Ontario and Canada. He continues to champion the inherent rights of First Nations by influencing legislation, yet maintains positive working relationships with all levels of government to continue to make progress for all Peoples in Ontario in his current role as Regional Chief. He was recognized for his efforts in advocacy with the conferring of 2 honorary doctorate degrees, the first in Education by Nipissing University (2011) and the second in Philosophy by University of South Florida (2012).

In 2009, Regional Chief Beardy partnered with the Trillium Gift of Life Network to promote the lifesaving benefits of organ and tissue donation in memory of his late son Daniel. In partnership with Trillium Gift of Life, he and his wife Nellie spearheaded an awareness campaign focused on reaching Ojibway, Cree, and OjiiCree speaking people in Ontario.

Regional Chief Beardy lives in Thunder Bay with Nellie and together they return home to the land as often as they can.

Carol Hopkins – Nozhem (“Mother Wolf”), of the Wolf Clan, is from the Delaware First Nation of Moraviantown, Ontario. She is the mother of 4 and grandmother of 7. Carol is the Executive Director of the National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation (NNAPF), an organization whose mandate is to support Canada’s First Nations Addictions programs. Carol came to this position in 2009 from the Nimkée NupiGawagan Healing Centre Inc., a youth solvent abuse treatment centre that is founded on Indigenous culture and life ways, where she was the founding Director since 1996.

Carol co-chaired a process for 7 years to develop and implement a renewed framework for the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program (NNADAP) and the Youth Solvent Abuse Program (YSAP). The result of this process is the Honouring Our Strengths: A Renewed Framework to Address Substance Use Issues in Canada which guides First Nations, federal and provincial governments and has influenced the path for other federal government policy review and development. The HOS renewal framework and implementation is a partnership between the Assembly of First Nations (AFN), NNAPF, and First Nations and Inuit Health Branch (FNIIHB) of Health Canada.

Carol’s work in the field of addictions also includes other leadership activities such as serving as the Chairperson for the National Youth Solvent Addiction Committee (YSAC) for 7 years with a focus on developing best practice guidelines for culturally based inhalant abuse treatment. Carol has represented First Nations clients on the Board of Directors for the Canadian Council for Health Services Accreditation, now known as Accreditation Canada, and participated in the development of the AIM accreditation program and standards. She also was an Accreditation Surveyor in both the mainstream health care system within Canada and within First Nations community health and addictions organizations.

Her strength in the health profession is the ability to blend western and Native traditional health & healing practices in a competent and responsive manner. In this regard, Carol has taught for various postsecondary institutes including Anishinabek Education Institute, Native Social Work program at Laurentian University, and currently is a Professor in the Social Work Program at Kings University College of the University of Western Ontario. She holds a Master’s degree in Social Work from the University of Toronto. Carol has received the Walter Dieter Award from the AFN in recognition of academic achievements made in the field of Social Work.

She also holds a Bachelor of Science Degree from Bishop’s University. Sonia has the capacity to conduct research directed toward prevention, intervention, health education, advocacy, policy and project design and evaluation of appropriate service delivery. Sonia currently works with the Assembly of First Nations as the Associate Director of Health within Safe, Secure, and Sustainable Communities. She has a high level of understanding and expertise related to First Nations health research, health information, health policy, health programs, epidemiology, First Nations interpretation, and First Nations Cultural Frameworks.

Nola Jeffrey is a Tsimshian woman of the Gitando tribe from the House of Sgagweet. She is a well-accomplished student, earning her Bachelor of Arts in First Nations Studies from Malaspina University College as well as multiple counseling trainings including completing her Trauma training through the Justice Institute and her Alcohol and Drug training through the Nechi Institute. She considers her highest accomplishment to be her role as Gigi to her 3 beautiful grandbabies.

She has worked at Tsow Tun Lelum since May of 2000. She was facilitator in the Qulaun Trauma Program for 7 ½ years, when she then transitioned to Program Director. As Program Director she has had the honour and privilege to work with many gifted Elders whom she continuously learns valuable teachings from. Nola is a very giving person who is excellent at taking care of those around her. She works tirelessly to be sure that Tsow Tun Lelum is as successful for the clients as it can be.

Eva Jewell is Deshkaan Ziibing Anishinabekwe from Chippewas of the Thames First Nation (COTTFN) in Ontario. Eva is a Doctor of Social Sciences student at Royal Roads University. She holds an MA in Indigenous Governance from University of Victoria and a BA in Indigenous Liberal Studies from the Institute of American Indian Arts. Eva is always interested in exploring how Anishinaabe adziwin (Indigenous life) is recreated daily through our active presence and practice and the infinite possibilities for wellness in indigenous communities impacted by colonialism. Eva is the Comprehensive Community Development Coordinator for COTTFN.

Betsy Lee Kechego, Waawaaskone – Boozhoo, Aanii kina weya. Waawaaskone n’dizhnikaa, Deshkaan Ziibing n’doojiba. Greetings everyone and thank you for the opportunity to be part of this conference and share with you all today. I will share a little bit about myself; I am from Chippewas of the Thames First Nation, the original place of Antler River of the Anishinaabeg. I presently reside in Chippewa with my 19 year old son and serve as a Counsellor for Chippewas of the Thames First Nation. The portfolio I am involved in is Governance, Heritage, and Culture and Language. I am actively involved in my community with volunteerism and hosting various community engagements.

Prior to community engagement and Council, I was a Social Worker and School Counsellor. It was a true learning experience working with Social Services and reflecting to me another understanding of how deep the roots of residential school are in my community. This understanding of community and learning encouraged me to further my education. I applied to a 4-year language immersion program through Bkejwanong First Nation and University of Ottawa; I completed B.Ed. and have learned to understand my grandparents’ language. However, with these new understanding and responsibilities I hope to give back to my community by creating new tools that encourage learning and new understanding for relationship building as a whole. Chippewa is currently involved in a Community Development process that promotes wellness and healing strategies.

Tina Leclaire has worked in the field of addictions and mental health for over 15 years. Tina has engaged in both rehabilitation and prevention work serving both adult and youth populations. She has been involved in numerous projects to advance and enhance the addictions services continuum in Manitoba. Tina is involved in many working groups and committees – most notable in the area of drug and alcohol treatment are her positions as the Chair of the Addiction Agencies Network in Manitoba, member of the FPT Problematic Substance Use Liaison Committee, and Co-Chair of the Provincial Cooccurring Disorders Leadership Team.

Ron LePage is originally from Brochet, a small community in northern Manitoba. Isabelle Meavasige is a Bear Clan Woman of the Serpent River, Ojibway, with a background is Social Work. She is a traditional helper, a counselor, and a ceremonialist. Isabelle has a permanent home on the Serpent River First Nation in Cutler, Ontario, where she lives with her partner and best friend, Blain. Her community is the source of her support, strength, and pride.

She is well-traveled and has worked in a variety of specialty areas including Child and Family Services, Mental Health Settings, Sexual Assault Groups, Indian Residential School Movement, and the Métis Community Wellness. Since 1999, she has presented powerful soul healing workshops at numerous Indigenous Peoples conferences in every province in Canada and in the US of A – child and family conferences, mental health, and family violence conferences are some of the many places she has presented. She is also involved in the Women’s Wellness Movement that is sweeping the Globe and has been invited to present at the Women’s World Conference in 2014 in India.

Isabelle promotes Traditional Aboriginal Cultural Perspective in all her work. The connection to the Elders/Teachers remains strong has been a guiding force in her life. They were influential in how she chose to live the “good life.” This motivated her to design programs that reflected the “Traditional Aboriginal Cultural Teachings” – she struggled to design her model of social work practice to ensure that it reflected cultural values. She combines the “Ancient Teachings” with contemporary education to bring understanding and healing to many, many people. In 2011, she became an entrepreneur and opened her own business with home office. Isabelle continues to consult and to provide specialized Indigenous models using ancient technologies.

Laurie Nicholas and Roxanne Sappier are Maliseet women and are experienced in the First Nations health field. They have worked in various capacities at community, regional, and national levels. Cultural practices have made a positive impact in the presenters’ personal and professional lives. They look forward to sharing their knowledge and resources. The Spirit lives within each of us; let’s have a conversation together.

Laurie Ann Nicholas, BSc, RD is Maliseet from the Tobique First Nation in New Brunswick. Laurie is employed by Mawiw Council of First Nations and has worked as the Community Health Coordinator since 2008. Laurie graduated in 1988 from St. Francis Xavier University with a Bachelor of Science degree and completed her Internship with the Ottawa Dietetic Internship program in 1990. Laurie was the first Aboriginal Registered Dietitian in the Atlantic region.

Laurie has worked in the First Nation health field for 24 years and is recognized for her work across Canada including various positions in Moose Factory, Akwesasne, and in the Atlantic region as well as her involvement on various community, regional, and national committees. Laurie is the co-founder of the Aboriginal Nutrition Network within Dietitians of Canada which began in 2001.

Laurie is the second youngest of eight children and is the proud daughter of Marilyn and Andrew Nicholas. Laurie enjoys drumming, participating in ceremonies and cultural events, walking, zumba, and spending time with friends and family.

Roxanne Grace Sappier is a proud Wolastoq woman from the Tobique First Nation. She attended Indian Day School until she was 10. After graduating from High School in 1983, she studied Office Management from the Atlantic Business Collage. She then obtained her Certificate of Health Administration from the University of New Brunswick and her Certificate of Social Work from the University of St.Thomas. Roxanne completed the Mikmaw-Maliseet Bachelor of Social Work program with St. Thomas University.

Roxanne has a 25+ year work history with the Tobique First Nation in various management positions. She has been the Executive Director of Health for the Tobique First Nation community since 1999. She sits on committees and special project teams that address the health priorities for her home community of Tobique. As Director of Neqotkuk Health Services, she was instrumental in achieving national accreditation of the health facilities in Neqotkuk.

While her life is dedicated to her family, the well-being of her community and Nation is also close to her heart. She has been happily married to Lyndon Sappier for the past 25 years and has two beautiful children – Grace age 9 and Josh age 20.

Eddie Pashagumskum is a Cree hunter, cultural resource, and Elder born and raised on the land. He spent most of his formative years living on the traditional territory of his family before being taken to the residential school. Eddie’s dedication to improving the well-being of the community and especially the youth has led to the creation of the Land-based Healing model. He is an educator and storyteller who aims to mobilize iiyiyiuu knowledge for the benefit of all people.

Kelly Pasloski has been involved within education for 37 years. Within this time, he has played many roles as an educator. He was an educational administrator for 30 years and taught a variety of subjects from Kindergarten to Grade 12. For 16 years he was employed within Band operated schools and the balance in the public school system. As an educator, he has truly developed a love for the traditional Aboriginal way of life. For this he has to thank Kokum Dorthy Starr and Kokum Alice Swanson.

Kelly has been employed by Leading Thunderbird Lodge for 5 years. The ‘Culturally Based Horizontal Curriculum’ is being developed with the help and support of the Faculty of Education – University of Regina, Vee Whitehorse – teacher and personal cultural advisor, and administration.

Norma Petahtegoose is Anishnawbe-kwe originally from the Sagamok First Nation. She has been a staff member of Atikameksheng Anishnawbek for three and a half years as their Housing Coordinator. In the organization structure she currently reports to the Manager of Public Works in the Community Assistance Department.

Her experience in housing has been extensive and innovative. In those three and half years the program has developed extensive housing policies adopted by Chief and Council. These policies assist with the administering and managing the housing program. We have been diligent with collecting arrears and rent. When she had started in the position three and a half years ago, housing arrears was at a high of 85% of occupants in arrears. Today it is down to 24%. This is major achievement for this First Nation.

Currently, Atikameksheng Anishnawbek is in the final stages of the development of a Nationwide First Nations Sustainable Development Standard which will assist communities in building healthy and safe homes for its members. As a project team member, Norma can affirm that this standard will go a long ways to further build the community’s capacity that is much needed in Atikameksheng and most other First Nations.

Caroline Recollet is a member of the Wahnapatie First Nation located north of Sudbury, ON, and was born and raised on the Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve on Manitoulin Island. She is an Anishinaabe Kwe Nookimus from the Anishinabek Nation. Caroline brings over 30 years of experience working with Aboriginal, First Nations, and Métis communities both in Ontario and in Alberta. She holds a Master’s degree in Environmental Studies from York University with a focus on First Nations/Government and Resource sector relations. Caroline is presently a part-time doctoral student in Rural & Northern Health at Laurentian University. She is interested in research that explores positive narratives and stories of Aboriginal grandmothers in Canada that promote mental, physical, spiritual, and emotional health and well-being through Indigenous worldviews and methodologies. Caroline is an apprentice of the Indigenous Sacred Arts and healing and has studied with numerous Indigenous shamans, elders, and medicine people over the past twelve years. She is presently the Aboriginal Initiatives Lead with the Centre for Addictions and Mental Health (CAMH).

Dr. Brenda M Restoule (Waub Zhe Kwens) is from Dokis First Nation (Ojibwa) and from the Eagle Clan. She is a registered clinical psychologist who received her undergraduate training from Western University and her graduate training from Queen’s University. Dr. Restoule recently assumed the chair of the Native Mental Health Association of Canada where she has been an active member for almost 20 years. The bulk of her practice is providing direct clinical services and consultation to First Nation peoples and communities in Anishinabek territory. She also acts as a consultant to government in the area of Indigenous mental health, addictions, and mental wellness including acting as co-chair with the Assembly of First Nations and First Nation and Inuit Health Branch on the development of a First Nation Comprehensive Mental Wellness Continuum Framework. She is an invited trainer and speaker to regional, national and international events and has authored book chapters and training manuals pertaining to Indigenous mental health and wellness. Some of Dr. Restoule’s past work experience includes Prison for Women and the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples. She has particular interest in cultural safety, Indigenous community development and capacity building, and reducing suicide rates in First Nation communities using Indigenous knowledge and practices.

Yvonne Rigby-Jones works as the Executive Director of the NNADAP funded Tsow-Tun Le Lum Substance Abuse Treatment Centre located on Snaw-Naw-As Island, Coast Salish territory Vancouver Island, B.C. Yvonne understands that traditional practices and ceremony are the way home for many of the residents at the Centre. The foundation of her work stems from belief and acknowledgement that our ancient ways are integral to our wellbeing. For almost 30 years Yvonne has worked with the Tsaw Tun Le –Lum team, providing healing for many who have suffered the effects of addiction and trauma in their lives. Working side by side with an excellent mentor and now retired Charles McLaughlin interning and returning to University to study Program Management; her career in Addiction and Trauma Treatment developed.

Jennifer Robinson is a Senior Policy Analyst for the Assembly of First Nations in Ottawa. She has recently moved to Algonquin territory from Coast Salish territory where she worked as Health Actions Leader for Vancouver Coastal Aboriginal Health Strategic Initiatives. Jennifer is an Algonquin woman from Timiskaming First Nation in Quebec who has worked extensively in First Nations communities and government over the past 15 years. She has worked closely with the National Native Addiction and Drug Abuse Program (NNADAP) treatment center directors and community NNADAP workers to identify mental health and addictions service barriers and helped to integrate telemedicine to address some of the access to addictions treatment challenges. She has delivered training nationally and internationally in the areas of prescription drug abuse prevention, intervention, chronic disease management, and First Nations education. Jennifer and her husband have a five year old daughter Sophieanne Kijate and a three year old son Luca Kijigate.

Paula Robson is an experienced Knowledge Broker and Registered Nurse who earned her BN from Memorial University of Newfoundland and her MScN from the University of Ottawa. Paula has over 20 years of experience in public health, health promotion, and population health. As a Nurse Clinician, she coordinated a child development program for infants and children who were prenatally exposed to alcohol and other drugs and their families with an outreach clinic in Vancouver’s Downtown Eastside. As Director of Early Child Development with the Canadian Institute of Child Health, Paula led health promotion and prevention initiatives to improve the health and resilience of Canada’s children and youth. She led the development of a regional health promotion initiative to reduce obesity among Ottawa’s youth. Paula pioneered the knowledge broker role in public health through her work with Health Evidence at McMaster University. Paula now works as a Knowledge Broker with the Canadian Centre on Substance Abuse, which has a legislated mandate to provide national leadership and evidence-informed analysis and advice to mobilize collaborative efforts to reduce alcohol- and other drug-related harms.

Often, Angelo is called upon to help at traditional ceremonies and teaching youth to sing Pow-Wow and Ceremonial songs.
Dear Stakeholder

The National Native Addictions Partnership Foundation (NNAPF) announced the Manitoba First Nation School Based Early Intervention Project in November 2011. The NNAPF Buffalo Rider project is designed to enhance and strengthen community-based capacity to provide at-risk youth with early and Brief Interventions and support services to help reduce harmful substance-using behaviour.

Since then, the NNAPF Buffalo Rider School Based Early Intervention project has trained more than forty participants who were selected from across the province of Manitoba. National Native Addictions Drug and Addiction Program councillors, health and school resource/support staff have taken the training. The five day training included the latest research and culturally sensitive teachings about youth resiliency, risk and protective factors, and developmental assets/factors which research has identified as critical for young people's successful growth and development.

“This training was the best training I've ever been to. I've never received so much valuable resources. Thanks you very much for everything! I really appreciated everything.”

Buffalo Rider trainee

NNAPF will deliver a five day training session in London, Ontario August 11th to 15th, 2014. There are only twenty available spots for applicants. The first twenty to register will be accepted into the program. The training fee is two thousand dollars ($1,700.00) payable upon registration.

Back in your community, the modules will be delivered by First Nation community staff members who have successfully completed their 5 day training session. The NNAPF Project Coordinator will assist you and your community with screening and assessments. The NNAPF Project Coordinator and participants will work together and develop 10 sessions that best fit their community needs. The trained facilitators will IMPLEMENT the 10 week program with the assistance of the NNAPF Project Coordinator. The training material will also be available online in a virtual training centre, to ensure that ongoing capacity building can be maintained.

“All the facilitators left their training energized, enthused and excited about implementing the School Based Early Intervention Program will all the necessary resources and skills. Their community knowledge and skills will also enhance their program tremendously, by providing the cultural knowledge needed to make their training successful and geared to their specific community needs.”

Nora Bressette, Project Manager

In addition, two other training sessions will be held on December 1-5/14 and February 23-27/15. If you’re interested in the next training session please contact: Nora Bressette at nbressette@nnapf.org or by calling 519-786-5713.

Programme de la conférence - Table des matières

Bienvenue à HNF2014  1
Conférenciers d'honneur  3
Notre mission est d’engager « une conversation sur le recours à la culture des Premières Nations pour faire face aux problèmes de toxicomanie et promouvoir le bien-être ». La culture des Premières nations doit être tant à la base qu’au cœur de la lutte contre les toxicomanies et la promotion du bien-être des individus, des familles et des collectivités. Cette conviction se renforce de plus en plus au sein des collectivités et des administrations, ainsi qu’auprès des prestataires de services des Premières nations et inuites, et se reflète également dans leurs politiques et recherche.

Toutefois, de nombreuses questions subsistent quant à la façon dont la culture est intégrée dans des domaines tels que l’élaboration des politiques et des programmes, la prestation de ceux-ci, l’évaluation et la recherche. Actuellement, il existe un certain nombre de modèles à succès où la culture est appliquée dans la recherche et les politiques, ainsi que dans la conception et la prestation des programmes. Des événements tels que celui qui nous rassemble aujourd’hui, nous offre l’occasion de discuter de ces modèles et fournir un accès précieux à un réseau de connaissances et de pratiques autochtones à ceux qui interviennent auprès des personnes, des familles et des communautés des Premières nations.

Les trois conférenciers d’honneur à la conférence sont Madeleine Dion Stout, l’aîné Jim Dumont et Michaela Shannon. Il y aura au total 24 séances captivantes de travaux en atelier, y compris des exposés spéciaux présentés par Nora Bressette, Ron LePage, et Tina LeClair sur le programme d’intervention précoce en milieu scolaire Buffalo Riders. À la suite de tous les travaux en atelier, il y aura une table ronde qui portera sur l’importance de la culture comme fondement du bien-être. En plus d’offrir une grande variété d’exposés éducatifs et donnant matière à réflexion, la conférence sera une excellente occasion d’interagir avec des délégués de partout au Canada.

À titre de Président du conseil d’administration et Directrice exécutive de la Fondation autochtone nationale de partenariat pour la lutte contre les dépendances (FANPLD), permettez-nous de saisir cette occasion pour dire merci à tous ceux qui ont travaillé à la planification et à l’organisation de cette conférence. Nous tenons particulièrement à remercier tous nos partenaires et nos commanditaires de leur soutien on ne peut plus précieux.

Nous tenons également à remercier tous les délégués qui prennent part à la conférence de cette année. Honorer nos forces 2014 n’aurait pu être réalisé sans l’appui d’un groupe de personnes aussi motivées de tant de différents endroits au Canada.

Enfin, nous vous invitons à nous rejoindre ici même à l’hôtel Delta Ottawa City Centre le 26 juin à 9 h, à l’occasion de l’Assemblée générale annuelle de la FANPLD.

Le chef Austin Bear,
Président du conseil d’administration, Fondation autochtone nationale de partenariat pour la lutte contre les dépendances

Carol Hopkins,
Directrice exécutive, Fondation autochtone nationale de partenariat pour la lutte contre les dépendances

Au nom de la Fondation autochtone nationale de partenariat pour la lutte contre les dépendances (FANPLD) en partenariat avec l’Association autochtone de la santé mentale, c’est avec un grand honneur et beaucoup de plaisir que nous vous accueillons à la Conférence nationale Honorer nos forces 2014.
Jim Dumont, Onaubinisay

Onaubinisay (qui marche au-dessus du sol) ou Jim Dumont est Ojibway-Anishinabe du clan Marten. Il est originaire de la Première Nation de Shawanaga dans la partie est de la baie Georgienne. Il est le chef de la porte de l’Est de la Three Fires Midewiwin Lodge et de ce fait, le garde du Tambour à eau sacré de la Lodge Midewiwin. Il est aussi dirigeant dans la partie est du territoire de Midewiwin Anishinabe.

Michaella Shannon

Michaella Shannon est membre des Premières Nations de Frog Lake en Alberta. Actuellement, elle vit à Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Elle s’apprête à déménager à Toronto cet automne. Elle a 18 ans et elle a terminé sa première année à l’U de S. Après son bac en Compétence autochtone et Criminologie, elle compte se spécialiser en Droit criminel.

Michaella s’est lancée dans la vie publique lorsqu’elle a décroché le rôle de la ‘ghost girl’ « fille fantôme » dans la série télévisée ‘Rabbit Fall’ « Chute de lapin » aux côtés des acteurs tels qu’Andrea Menard et Tinsel Cory. Depuis lors, elle a aussi joué dans My Lupine Life, et elle réalise actuellement une série télévisée intitulée Space Stretch qui apprend aux enfants à faire du yoga. Elle y joue le rôle de Sash Tanga.

Elle faisait également partie de la campagne « What Else Got Wasted » du ministère de la santé de la Saskatchewan – une campagne menée sur internet, à la télévision, à travers des affiches pour sensibiliser les jeunes aux dangers de l’abus d’alcool. Michaella a conçu des ateliers ayant pour tâche de se pencher sur le problème de l’abus d’alcool ou de drogues et le taux de suicide élevé chez les jeunes de la communauté autochtone. Formée en intervention et en prévention du suicide, elle facilite des ateliers qui se penchent sur le lien entre l’abus d’alcool et de drogues et le taux élevé de suicide chez les jeunes autochtones. Elle organise ces présentations tout au long de l’année, mais généralement, pendant la Semaine nationale de sensibilisation aux toxicomanies (SNST), ses services sont sollicités par les écoles et les réserves. Michaella a également conçu des ateliers à l’intention des filles du secondaire intitulés Decision Making and Reproductive Health (Prise de décision et Santé reproductive) – un programme visant à faire face aux problèmes de grossesse chez les jeunes filles.

miche2Michaella est l’une des top modèles de Saskatoon et on l’ invite souvent à de nombreux événements de collectes de fonds partout en Saskatchewan. Elle a été invitée à faire du mannequinat lors des Fashion Week Broadcasts sur APTN, la semaine de la mode de Vancouver et elle a également été invitée aux segments de la mode de Global TV et CTV News. Michaella est escorte de scène pour les Indspire Awards et les Sabex Awards.

Le 28 avril 2014, Michaella a remporté le titre de Miss Teen Saskatchewan – 2014 et elle prendra part au concours Miss Teen Canada à Toronto en juillet. Elle a également pris part à la Canadian Model and Talent Convention (convention des mannequins et des talents canadiens) du 7-11 mai, suite à laquelle elle a reçu des sollicitations de Paris et de New York et une invitation de l’Atlantic records à enregistrer une maquette.

Michaella assiste à des cérémonies et prend part aux pratiques de spiritualité autochtone. Elle est consciente de la pertinence de « l’identité » et « la culture » dans le fondement de l’existence humaine. Elle mène une vie saine et est consciente de l’importance d’équilibrer tous les défis auxquels l’on est appelé à faire face dans la vie.

C’est un grand honneur pour elle d’assister à la Conférence « Honorer nos forces » en tant que modèle pour les jeunes, elle qui est un exemple de combien on peut accomplir si on se fixe des objectifs à atteindre, si on reste concentré, si on comprend qu’en grande partie, le succès passe par l’estime de soi et le choix d’un mode de vie sain.
Conférenciers d’honneur

Maître de cérémonie - Stan Wesley

Stan est originaire de Moose Factory en Ontario, une collectivité crie sur la côte sud de la baie James où il est né et où il a passé sa jeunesse. Tout jeune, Stan entama ce qui deviendra une longue carrière en donnant du sens à la vie de son public et en faisant rire celui-ci...à travers la mise sur pied du “Bunnuck”, une émission hebdomadaire diffusée durant plusieurs saisons sur TVO et sur TVNC.

Depuis lors, et ce depuis plus de 20 ans, Stan engage et divertit son public grâce à son style unique qui allie profondeur et humour dans ses différents exposés, discours liminaires et interventions en tant que maître de cérémonie et facilitateur. Stan intervient sur divers sujets, notamment la célébration du succès et la promotion de bonnes relations saines entre les peuples autochtones et non autochtones.

Stan a déjà travaillé à l'échelle locale, régionale, provinciale et nationale. Son infatigabilité et son approche professionnelle sincère font de lui l'un des meilleurs conférenciers au plan national aujourd'hui.

Stan vit actuellement à Toronto avec son épouse, Mandy et leur fille Maya.

Madeleine Dion Stout

La conférencière crie Madeleine Dion Stout est née et a grandi dans la Première Nation de Kehewin, en Alberta. Après avoir obtenu son titre d'infirmière autorisée à l'Hôpital général d'Edmonton, elle a obtenu un baccalauréat en soins infirmiers de l'Université de Lethbridge, puis une maîtrise en affaires internationales de la Norman Paterson School of International Affairs de l'Université Carleton. Elle siège à plusieurs conseils et comités autochtones et non autochtones, notamment le Comité consultatif sur le soutien en santé (résolution) de Santé Canada et la First Nations Health Society de la Colombie Britannique, en plus de prendre part à divers projets des Instituts de recherche en santé du Canada. Mme Dion Stout a aussi présidé l'Aboriginal Nurses Association of Canada et a participé au Forum national sur la santé. En août 2007, elle a été nommée première vice-présidente du conseil d'administration de la Commission de la santé mentale du Canada. De plus, Mme Dion Stout a enseigné les études canadiennes et a agi comme directrice fondatrice du centre d'éducation, de recherche et de culture autochtones de l'Université Carleton, à Ottawa. Aujourd'hui travailleuse autonome, elle poursuit ses travaux de chercheuse, d'écrivaine et de conférencière sur la santé des Premières Nations, des Inuit et des Métis, adoptant de plus en plus une perspective crie sur le sujet. Elle a remporté le prix Assiniwikamik décerné par l'Aboriginal Nurses Association of Canada et un prix d'ancienne élève éminente de l'Université de Lethbridge en plus d'obtenir un doctorat honorifique en droit de l'Université de la Colombie Britannique et de l'Université d'Ottawa. En novembre 2008, l'Association des infirmières et infirmiers du Canada a décerné l'un de ses cent prix du centenaire, soulignant les réalisations exceptionnelles d'infirmières canadiennes, à Mme Dion Stout. Puis, en mars 2010, elle a mérité le Prix national d'excellence décerné aux Autochtones dans la catégorie Santé.
